

Dario Giraldo Burn Up List For Week 3 -- 01/18/2016 – 01/24/2016
PAP 1 C201601 Section 2

After evaluating the MS Project Gantt chart conversion to Excel, decided that it would not work. Not because the data will not work but rather the directions on how to build the spreadsheet. The columns and rows will not match.

Another issue with me is that I already have a professional electronic footprint. However now I have come to believe that it is outdated. It is no longer enough. So comes the hard work to convert it to a current portfolio.

So have started to readjust my branding to integrate the mobile application arena. Will follow up on the requests for membership in several special interest groups whose focus is mobile applications development.

My next anchor points document will contain more specific details on items that I will work on to better define the items in the ePortfolio.

For the Call To Action – Encouragement Quote or Phrase, it going to be so challenging for me because there are so many that I draw encouragement from.

The flowchart may be challenging even if I have built them and even wrote routines that read data from databases and drew them dynamically on the fly. So it will be interesting to see how it comes out.

Will continue to look at all of the items in the career module because there are so many items that are so useful and provide incredible insight on branding. While I was reading some items last week, it dawned on me how much different an effective professional cyber footprint is today versus ten years ago.

Looking forward to read the encouragement quotes and reply to several posts.

Complete the project spreadsheet with accurate figures and provide a document in pdf format with a link to the GitHub REPO repository.
