What have you done?

I found out last week that for this session of PAP we were not physically setting up an ePortfolio.   So its setup has been placed in the back burner for now.

However, have analyzed potential containers (or sections) and in my mind do have a plan on how to set it up. So I have began to research how it would look in cyberspace and this will be my next focus on this item.

Another item that downed on me was that number of links that we have been provided not only in this course but the ones already completed. When the courses end, so does the access to the materials provided.

So I decided to build a tree in the web browser bookmarks. The primary node would be FSU and from there a new sub node will be created with the course name and the links for each course will be added to them. From there using the ability to name each bookmark, the activity name will serve to catalog the links and easy to retrieve later.

Been working on the Career Module sections and plan on completing all by Saturday night (before midnight).

Enjoyed the inspirational quotes activities (research and replies).

What are you doing?

Have selected the growth quote and tomorrow I will be writing the assignment. Moreover, need to work on some of the Career Modules activities before the weekend.

What's Next?

Complete all of the tasks left for PAP and CM. Looking forward to the reading of the growth quotes. Deliver on time the last assignments and complete the growth quotes research. Participate in the comment section with remarks on entries made by other classmates.

How TO?

Complete the bookmark tree and add all of the links for this course to it. Continue to study the topics touched during the last four weeks. These concepts are not dated (some of the branding items date back to last decade).
