Dario Giraldo Burn Up List For Week 2 --   01/10/2016 – 01/17/2016
PAP 1   C201601   Section 2

While writing this document, I am still deciding on the best format for the PAP Project spreadsheet. It appears to me is that it would look better and easier to read/track if its format is more like a GNATT chart than a simple weekly schedule.

One of my weakness is that must analyze work before committing to its development. In many of the items in this course, one must start and then fine-tune the approach. This is something I truly do not like and have spent decades avoiding.

So must find a way to turn a weakness into strength. Was thinking about using the MS Project and then save the output in Excel format.

Need to readjust my branding from what it currently is to integrate the mobile application arena. One of my desires for this course is to accomplish this re-branding. Need to connect all my strong technical skills to the mobile app environments.

Need to write the anchor points to detail all of the items I have been working on, not only for completing my degree but start to build the different items that will put me in a better position to start being engaged in the kind of projects via Full Sail Career Center.

For the Call To Action – Failure To Success Story have been thinking on several.   From the Columbus and his deal with the crew of La Santa Maria, Hernan Cortez and his burning of the ships or George Foreman and the electric grill.

It appears to me that I need to compose two mission statements. One is the academic one and the other the professional one.   The goal academically is not the same as the professional. At least that is the way I see it.

Continue to review and read the Career Module materials and begin to formulate and build a brand.

Read Failure To Success stories and reply to several posts.

Complete the project spreadsheet with accurate figures.
